How does the LAMIVECT operate?

Until 2020, LAMIVECT received annually 50,000 euros from IRD and CIRAD. About half of this budget was directly redistributed to Burkinabe and Ivorian institutions for laboratory operations, consumables, salaries, missions, etc. The other part of the budget funded laboratory coordination, research micro-projects, short courses and communication actions.

Therefore the management board is looking for a yearly funding of 50,000 euros to allow the sustainability of this inter-institutional partnership between north and south on vector-borne diseases.

As the keystones of the LAMIVECT are now consolidated with evidence-based of effectiveness of this partnership through the implemented research projects, the numerous international publications and the organization of several training courses, it is advisable to continue the story of this interdisciplinary laboratory by proposing its experience and know-how to the region.
